THE BOOKS

On the shelves of this fine collection books of fact and theory, each serving its purpose and each with its special value.
The books form a series on which we may look to the days of a new world and humanity. They are all new and the present with the future. It is a new series of books that we have in the world to read, for the day of the future.
They are in the hands of our people.
This book is designed to each and every one of you with the hope that it will

Presenting

On the shelves of time stand countless books of fact and fancy, each serving its purpose and each with its inspiration.

As books form a bridge on which we may cross back to the days of Robin Hood and Huckleberry Finn, so will they link the present with the future. It is upon this bridge of books that we may, in the years to come, retrace the story of the intervening years back to the days of our youth.

This book is dedicated to each and every one of you with the hope that within these pages will be found, captured forever, the experiences and pleasures of this departed year. A backward glance upon this eventful year will seem like a glimpse into a fleeting fancy of an author's masterpiece.

In presenting this Reflector of 1936, we give you an historical chronicle in which may be found stories more interesting and characters far more intriguing to us than those fanciful creatures who live an imaginary and make-believe plot. Open then this book of life which so strongly resembles an imaginary story but which will, in the future, become a veritable storehouse of fanciful tales mingled with poignant remembrances.

the pages will be found, a list of the separated and separated of the separated year. It back in which upon the year the year will seem like a chapter, and a
the year of an author's masterpiece.
in the year this collector of 1870.
the year is a historical chronicle in which may be found every year interesting and characteristic for the year. It is not the year of the year, who are not in the year and the year of the year. It is not the year of the year, so as to be separated as an imaginary story, but which will be the year of the year, a certain year of the year of the year, which will be the year of the year.

Lincoln was awkward, but with an elegance that a king might envy and common man despise. He moved with an ease that was in the highest degree impressive and with a grace of nature that would have become a woman.

—Truman H. Bartlett.

o each man is given a marble
to carve for the wall,
A stone that is needed to heighten the beauty of all,
And only his soul has the
magic to give it grace,
And only his hands have the cunning to put it in place."
—Edwin Markham.

hrough the sharp
air a flaky tor-
rent flies,
Mocks the slow
sight, and hides the gloomy skies;

The fleecy clouds then chilly
bosoms bare,
And shed their substance, on the floating air."

—George Crabbe.

MR. O. O. YOUNG
Superintendent

A good book is the result of the supervision and influence of a person who, though he receives little recognition, deserves praise. That person is the publisher, a man of efficiency and sound judgment whose work determines the success or failure of a publication. We are fortunate in having as our publisher, Mr. Young, who deserves abundant credit for the efficient and understanding administration from which we derive so much that is valuable and enjoyable from our school. Only with the assistance and co-operation of a good publisher is a successful book possible.

An author has the difficult task of combining hundreds of words in order to create literature. Mr. Moyer is our author who takes the eleven hundred students, and by his careful guidance and supervision molds their lives just as a writer molds eleven hundred words into an inspiring literary masterpiece. His sincere loyalty, wise judgment and friendship have made the plot of this book, with its eleven hundred components, an interesting and worthwhile one. He is directly responsible for all the functions of the high school, and to him we credit this successful year.

THIS BOOK FOR YOU
"I leave this book for you, O
friend of mine,
To speak for me that day my lips are dumb.
A silent messenger I bid it come
To gain the welcome I must needs resign."
—McCrae Pickering.

MISS COX
Dean of Girls

MR. CRAWFORD
Dean of Boys

Everyone holds a place in his heart for the story book heroine. It is even so in ours, for we have a leading lady as gracious as ever stepped across the pages of any book. Miss Cox, Dean of Girls, adviser to the Girls' Service League, and friend to all, is our heroine. Her pleasing personality and capable leadership have endeared her to all with whom she comes in contact. With her record of service and her willingness to be a friend, it is with great pride that we point to the heroine of our book.

A POOL

Water bright
With silver light,
A colorful hue
And a splash of blue,
Fish slim and cool,
A beautiful pool.
—Raymond Clopine.

There are few books that do not possess a hero whose sterling qualities recommend him as a leader and a person deserving of praise. In our book we have such a man, for Mr. Crawford by his outstanding leadership of the Boys' Forum and senior class has proven himself to be a hero in every sense of the word. In his work as Dean of Boys he has established a reputation for friendly interest and square dealing in every problem. Playing such an important part in the life of our school, it is quite evident that Mr. Crawford is a hero well qualified for the role.

So few of us realize what an enormous task it is to provide an efficient and beneficial school administration. The responsibility of accomplishing this is entrusted by the people to a Board of Education. Though we as the student body have but slight contact with this group, they nevertheless play a very important part in our school life. Working without compensation other than the gratitude of the community they serve, this group devotes much time and work to the solving of school problems relating to finances and administration.

Our Board of Education has always shown a keen interest in the school life and by their generous help have contributed in a large measure to its improvement. We feel that we say little enough when we extend to them our thanks and appreciation for their part in making our education a worthwhile and never-to-be-forgotten experience.

Indolent scholar, brilliant one and mediocre, all pass in constant review before that group we know as the faculty.

Aristotle in the days of Athenian glory based his teachings upon the developing of knowledge to bring the individual welfare into closer harmony with that of society. On this principle our faculty has founded its wonderful work. It is with this high aim that they have done their part in bringing the individual into closer understanding with each of his fellows and thus laying a foundation for a better, more desirable life. Words cannot be found to express the depth of appreciation we feel toward this group.

Sophomores

Life begins at 14

The cover is open, and the first page of the book is made when the sophomore begins his high school career. He has read of story books before but making one is altogether a different problem. This year, with the taking of individual pictures, the sophomores took a definite stand in the making of their high school story book. Their talent in the field of acting was revealed in the presentation of "Once in a Palace" which was the first high school play to be given by a sophomore class. By competing in the many activities which were offered them this year, the sophomores agree that, "Life Begins at 14."

The juniors have already made their debut and with a sly twinkle in their eyes think how nice it is to be no longer classed as sophomores and yet feel they do not have to leave the pages of G. H. S. like the seniors. Upon them falls the duty of continuing the story. By the junior year, the student has had ample time to mold himself into the true character of the story. Thus he assumes a still more important role in the plot.

The last pages of the book are made by the seniors who for three years have passed from one chapter to another until they come to the final one in which they themselves play the leading part. The last year is one of great excitement, with final records to be made in the field of drama, declam, debate, oratory, extemp, athletics, operetta and the National Honor Society. Browsing back over the pages of the book of high school life from the sophomore to the senior year, the print seems to say to you again "Life Begins at 14."

Wize honor

Because of consistent efforts, sixty-three students have been admitted to the National Honor Society.

Character, Scholarship, Leadership, Service—so reads the inscription on the keystone. Merged as they are, the ideals of this Honor Society and the society of which all of us are members, the achievement of these ideals remains a goal toward which all of us should strive. Members! We congratulate you.

Girls who enjoyed the assistance of Miss Ryin were: Peggy Lou Amison, Lucille Benson, Barbara Burkhalter, Louise Christofferson, Blanche Cordell, Genevieve Davis, Liberty Dawson, Frances Emstrom, Marjorie Gustafson, Bernadine Hatfield, Marian Hawkinson, Bernice Herman, Virginia Mae Hughes, Georgia May Johnson, Helen Johnson, Mary Lou Johnson, Marjorie Koons.

It was a crisp fall day when Audrey Bennet went to club. She sat gazing out of the window watching the falling leaves. Would her club year be as bright and colorful as those autumn leaves?

Nine months later she sat in the same seat reminiscing. Yes, her club year had been a colorful one.

The first bright leaf had fallen November 15, when "Locked Windows" had been presented—then had come debate—next a very vivid leaf had fallen January 25 when she attended the "Winter-Wonderland" party—and how delightful it had been to entertain her mother March 25 at a tea in a Japanese Garden—she could never forget that spring party May 1.

The last leaf had fallen at a banquet at Soangetaha June 2, when new leaves were bursting from trees all about her. Perhaps her tree would bear new and lovelier fruit next year for some other girl.

All aboard! All aboard! Next stop is room 214 where the fun starts and sorrows end.

Traveling through the school year, we have passed through many pleasant hours of programs, songs, plays, debates, and talks.

Our pilots to steer our plane were selected twice during the year. The second group of officers led us safely through very snowy weather.

On January 15, we reached Steele Hall to enjoy a party given by four clubs in G. H. S. The colonial theme, in red and blue, with bonnets, top hats, and canes, was used at this gala affair. We all tried our hand at capturing balloons and also saving them; however, very few were successful. All in all, we feel delighted in having taken part in such a successful party.

As we coast into graduation, the departing members leave our slogan, "At the top and still climbing," as a measure to ride to a higher altitude than during the past year.

The following girls, with the help of Mrs. Gale, were able to form a club: Lucille Anderson, Lyle Austin, Ar-eta Berge,

Dorothy Boyd, Lucille Bruner, Frances Chinn, Wilma Claus, Geneva Cooper, Virginia Curran, Mildred Darnell, Virginia Dunbar, Mildred Ecklund, Iva Mae Fink, Blanche Folger, Maxine Hast, Lorene Harrod.

Gladys Johnson, Helen M. Johnson, Goldie Jones, Verna Lawver, Ila Lipes, Irene McCulloch, Dorthella McGill, Lorraine Malmrose, Helen Meadows, Edna Mae Morris, Genevieve Nelson, Amaryllis O'Dean, Mary Jean Palmquist, Gladys Park, Evelyn Payne, Helen Quinn.

Velma Ransom, Maxine Reid, Marie Robers, Virginia Sands, Mary Scott, Betty Lou Snyder, Bernice Stegall, Doris Thurman, Marcella Travis, Bernice Wagner, Beatrice Walker, Louise White, Josephine Wycoff.

These girls entertained their mothers at a tea on April 24, carrying out a spring theme.

To Miss Moser, the following girls owe their success: Bettye Brent, Rosemary Creighton, Kathryn Davison, Carolyn Driscoll, Jean Garver, Frances Gross, Rachel Grossman, Dorothea Hallas, Helen Hallas, Betty Mae Holmquist, Margaret M. Johnson, Pearl Johnson, Shirley Jordon, Lowanda Lee.

Barbara Lewis, Orabelle Lundquist, Harriet McVay, Jane McVay, Phyllis Mathers, Betty Miller, Patty Miner, Geraldine Moore, Betty Mortenson, Betty Myers.

Debate squad: Bettye Brent, Kathryn Davison, Betty Mae Holmquist, Betty Miller, Maye Olson, Anita Sand, Marian Thourean, Grayce Wicall.

Project: Bought new furniture for the Recreation Rooms.

Analotos ~

Once upon a time there was a girl by the name of Anna Lotos. By chance, I met this charming bit of personality in a "Little Gypsy Tea Room" on the eve of November 23.

Incidentally, Anna helped her team to place in one of the three highest ranks of the season in club debate. Through pure luck I was honored by being the one selected to play opposite Anna in "Mixed Dates" given February 19. Anna proved herself a clever hostess on March 18, when she entertained her mother at a tea in honor of St. Patrick.

Because Anna and I had been friends during the entire year, she wanted me to go with her to the spring party. Naturally I accepted the invitation and spent a most enjoyable evening with her on May 16.

On the evening before graduation, June 3, Anna was honored, as were her seven other Senior Annie Sisters, at a banquet held at the Soangetaha Country Club.

Franklin ~ ~ ~ ~

Reminiscing over the school year, we notice that the Franklins have travelled far. A Masque party held on November 16 successfully launched the social activities. The annual banquet was held February 19 with Coach Dean Trevor as the speaker. A spring party on May 29 ended the social activities for the year.

Offering competition to all concerned, the F. D. C. debaters attained the highest ranking of the boys' clubs. In the inter-club baseball contest, the Franklins finished second, but in the basketball tournament they tied for first place. The Franklins were successful in placing second in the swimming tournament.

With the Girls' Science Club, a benefit assembly "Locked Windows" was presented on November 15. From the money received, magazine subscriptions purchased as the F. D. C. project last year, were renewed.

The Franklins are quite proud of their scholarship standing. During the past year, approximately fifteen members repeatedly obtained a place on the Honor Roll.

Mr. Damberg, who is adviser of this club, ably assisted by the members, helped the Reflector Staff by giving them the score cards for the basketball tournaments.

Boys' Collectors

In the fall the B. C. C. began the season by placing second in grade averages for the boys' clubs and third in inter-club softball.

On November 15, they held their annual fall dance in the form of a novelty party with the Laurians in Steele Hall. Despite the fact that they had no debate team, they continued to hang up records by their good showing in the swimming and golf meets. Boys who took part in the swimming tournament were Fred Blixt, Wallace Rosenquist and Harold Sandberg.

Their project for the year consisted of purchasing a type cabinet and filling it with type. The money for this was secured by selling ads in the score cards which were printed in the G. H. S. print shop. This type will prove useful in the printing of the numerous and various club, band, orchestra and speech department programs and posters, which are printed and set up by G. H. S. students in the G. H. S. print shop.

Again the club members met with the Laurians in a gala spring party which was held in Steele Hall on April 25. On the last day of school, they enjoyed a picnic at Lake Storey. A baseball game was held between the graduates and underclassmen with the graduates winning by a large margin.

As a parting gift, the members of the graduating class were presented with handsome diplomas testifying to their good standing in club work.

ir:

While looking through a collection of records in Morley's bookshop, I came across a most interesting document. It proved to be a record of a club known as the Lincolns. The members of this club were excellent scholars and were very active in school life.

With the "Lizzies" they produced "He Troops to Conquer," a highly successful play. As a project, a type case was given to the printing department.

At the annual banquet the Lincolns ate heartily and then listened to the advice of Professor Lyman P. Wilson, from Cornell University.

The mid winter dance featured new ideas in club parties and was thoroughly enjoyed by everyone. The spring party, another delightful dance, was the high spot of a successful Lincoln year.

There is much more history in this record that I'm sure you will be interested in, so I am sending it to you through the first mail.

Sincerely,
Ling Kun.

The following boys worked with Mr. Harris, their adviser:

Kenneth Hardine, Russell Hardine, Judson Harlan, Richard Hartley, John Highlander, William Holm, Robert Howe, Reed Hunt, Glenn Lashbrook, Dean Lester, Dean Lindstrom, Dale McKee, Robert Mariner, Charles Marks, James O'Donnell, Herbert Pihl, Ted Pihl, George Poulos, Ralph Powless.

Edmund Roberts, Stanley Schreiber, Rex Selk, Max Stubbs, Howard Utt, Frank Wallace, Oliver Warner, James Watson, Charles Webster, Robert White, Donald Woolsey, John Woolsey, Robert Young.

Last year the Eli Graham award for the most useful Lincoln was founded. The selection is made at the end of the year.

Lincoln ~ ~

With the assistance of Miss Lamb, these girls organized a new club: Vivienne Allen, Ruth Asbury, Lillian Benedict, Marguerite Carlton, Evelyn Clifford, Martha Daugherty, Vera Davidson, Eloise Eaves, Dorothy Goldquist, Florence Gross, Mary Jane Hart, La Vonne Hanlin, Helen Jo Johnson, Rosemary Johnson, Frances Linder, Julia Hewitt, Vivian Higgins, Vernice McGill, Julia Mattocks, Myrletta Mahaffey, Louise Massingill, Telitha Mitchell, Doris Moor, Arline Nelson, Margaret Nystrom, Beverly Page, Calypso Poulos, Myrle Quarfot, Freeda Reeves, Dorothy Rippel, Maurleen Ripperdon, Patricia Scott, Mabel Shafman, Ruth Shaner, Helen Shugart, Dorothy Stake, Doris Tederman, Lorrel Thierry, Nina Upson, Marian Westburg, Dorothy Wherley.

From the Diary of a Muse.

Sept. XXVI Dear Diary,

I have something interesting to tell you. This afternoon I looked down from Mt. Helicon upon the planet Earth. My gaze fell upon a place called G. H. S. where I noticed a group of girls forming a club. They were busy choosing a president (Rosa Johnson) a vice-president (Reva Witherspoon) and a secretary (Patricia Scott).

Oct. X Oh, Diary, I'm so excited! Apollo took me with him in the sun chariot today. As we rode over G. H. S., Apollo drove so slowly that we could see what was happening. There, we saw those club girls selecting a name for their organization, and now comes the big news—they chose my name! I'm so thrilled about it. The club will be known as the Polyhymnia Literary Club.

Dec. V. My Polyhymnia girls elected the following officers today—president, Beverly Page; vice-president, Vivienne Allen and secretary, Julia Mattocks.

Feb. XVI. Last night Diana asked me to ride across the sky with her in the moon chariot. When we sailed over G. H. S. we found that my girls had invited their boy friends to a party and with the girls of three other clubs they were having a grand time dancing in a large room decorated very prettily with beautiful colors and gay balloons. Sometimes, Diary, I almost wish I were a mortal.

Feb. XX. The following officers were chosen today: president, Vivienne Allen; vice-president, Doris Moor; secretary, Dorothey Ripple.

Prokorama ~ ~ ~ ~

The Prokoramas little suspected that Spanish customs resurrected on the date of November 8 would make a party both hearty and gay. There a fountain spread misty dew back into depths of rose and blue, and as the spraylets dropped, there were many who stopped to watch the changing hue.

The question stated and duly debated was about a state medicine plan and then as the time began to grow near when Prokoramas would enter upon another new year, a play was selected which Miss White directed. So when January 31 was finally here, "Her First Assignment," meant wholly for enjoyment, was presented.

In glad array on St. Patrick's day, the girls, their mothers met, and then in May on the fifteenth day, the party of spring was the thought of the thing. The political theme made it seem as though election time were here, but it's just a dream, and tears appear, for near are the close of school days dear,—the last for those in their senior year. So the third of June in banquet tune, brought good-byes with laughs and sighs, to happy hours in a club that's ours.

Directed by Miss Hilker, the following Prokoramas led the march:

Kathryn Bauer, Eileen Becker, Helen Bergwall, Elsie Berntson, Phyllis Bird, Doris Brouillette, Alice Brown, Bernice M. Carlson, Jeannette Carlson, Esther Carmody, Betty Cline, Katherine Cole, Glenrose Colver, Lois Cook, Doris Durbin, Lois Duvall, Ruth Ennis, Phyllisee Foust, Carol Granburg, Billie Griffith, Minnie Hall, Lorraine Hallstrom, Dorena Hamblin, Myrtlellen Ingles, Barbara Johnson, Ruby Laurence, Betty Leighty, Patty Lynch, Rachel Manworren, Mary Marsden, Ruth Mason, Alice Mayhall, Mary Jean Nelson, Marian Palmer, Ila Pease, Betty Lou Richards, Janet Seiberlich, Ruth Snare, Helen Tracy, Eloise Tupper, Margaret Wallich, Jeanette Watson, Marian Youngren.

The Prokoramas finished their parade with a happy ending. After jolly times at their parties and banquets, the underclassmen bade farewell to the seniors of their club, who had participated in its events for the last three years.

On May 23, the club entered a team in the inter-club golf tournament. The foursome was chosen from the following boys: Richard Fosburg, captain, Harold Shotwell, Jack Ashton, Edwin Porter, Russell Johnson and Richard Allen. The tournament was held at Lincoln Park.

Sequoia

As one of the newly organized clubs in the high school the Sequoia Boys' Club progressed rapidly. With Mr. Hayes as adviser, the club, consisting of forty-five members at the beginning of the school year, accomplished much.

During the baseball season, a team representing the club entered the tournament and provided strong competition for their opponents. Although there was no debate team, the Sequoias entered the inter-club basketball tournament with pep and zest.

The club won fourth place in the club swimming meet held March 25, having won 9 points. Billy Wilson finished first in the 20 yard free style, George McMaster won second in the underwater swim, and Henry Legge placed fourth in the plunge for distance. Wesley Reams, George McMasters, Henry Legge, and Billy Wilson were on the relay team.

A spring party was held April 17, with the Senecans and the Americans, with a committee composed of Wesley Reams and Raymond Anderson from the Sequoians.

Illinae ~ ~ ~ ~ ~

In September, the Goddess of Clubs summoned the Indian maidens of the Illini tribe, who had attained the ranks of juniors and seniors to form a club. As it was to be a purely feminine club, they changed the spelling of Illini to Illinae.

After it had been organized for several weeks, the Fair One called forth six of the maidens to participate in debating. They had the distinction of being the only one of the newly formed girls' clubs to take part in this activity. The affirmative side of the question was upheld by Dorothy Huston, Lenore Inman and Jeanne Butler while those of the negative were Marian Mecum, Dorothy Sweborg and Margaret Haussmann.

On February 15, the Goddess called the members to a delightful Colonial Party at Steele Hall which was enjoyed by all who attended.

The members of this club wish to thank the good Goddess for making the organization of this club possible as it has enabled each to make many new acquaintances.

Mrs. Rich assisted the following members of the Illinae Literary Club: Dorothy Anderson, Lola Baker, Rita Besser, Della Mae Booz, Jeanne Butler, Gladys Carl, Lila Cherrington, Barbara Cline, Margaret Doran, Gladys Durbin, Lois Durbin, Frances Erickson, Eileen Everitt, Marjorie Formhals, Maxine Foster, Frances Giberson.

June Hall, Margaret Haussman, Katherine Herrington, Dorothy Huston, Lenore Inman, Rosetta Lawton, Dorothy Linder, Esther Lindgren, Lois Lund, Evelyn Lusk, Wanda Mace, Marian Mecum, June Melick, Georgia Morrison, Esther Nelson, Helen Nemeth, Mary Beth Owens.

Eunice Pettit, Mardell Porter, Sophie Poulos, Isabel Ring, Bertha Ritchie, Betty Scheerer, Margaret Skidmore, Charlotte Swanson, Dorothy Sweborg, Frances Sweborg, Rita Tilly, Margaret Underwood, Ruth Vestal, Nina Waymack, Carol Wedan, Marian Witherall.

Four-and-thirty girls who enjoyed the assistance of Miss Morse were:

Laurian

In September the Laurians chartered Bus 112 for their journey of nineteen thirty-five and six. On the way attractive hitchhikers joined the Laurians and the semi-monthly Laurian Amplifier, with its humorous and friendly sketches helped them to become acquainted.

The bus stopped at Steele Hall November 15 for a Novelty party with the Boys' Collectors. In spite of King Winter's snowdrifts, the Laurians were first in the race to Debateville where they won the club debate championship.

These tourists met their mothers on Recreation Ridge where they had tea on February 20. A Major Bowes Amateur program was especially arranged for this occasion.

At the G. H. S. Town Hall, the Laurian benefit assembly, "Miss Nancy's Legacy" was presented by the following cast: Carolyn Cordell, Robert Bromberger, Dorothy Johnson, Helyn Culver, Sara Swagert, and Marion Humphrey. Miss Anderson coached the play.

By April 25, the travelers reached Steele Hall where they met the Collectors at a spring party. Guests were ushered to the veranda of a Southern home by a colored butler.

Laurians, Alumnae and faculty stopped at the Galesburg Club for their last night together on June 4. At the Court of Honor, awards were made to the graduating seniors; to the successful debaters and to the outstanding junior and senior girl. After the banquet, Bus 112 was stored in G. H. S. Garage until time for next year's journey.

his year the Thespian Weekly News was published for the first time by our newly organized group, the Thespian Literary Club.

The aim of the staff was to instruct its readers for membership in school organizations, as well as for membership in organizations outside of school.

For the special features of the Thespian Weekly News, the interests and talents of the readers were the impetus. There were editorials on parliamentary law, debate, music, drama, and literature.

One attractive item was an amateur radio contest in which only members of the staff and subscribers could participate. Another popular item was the presentation of a play, "A Peck of Trouble."

The chief function of the year's publication was a dance which was given for the readers in Steele Hall. The colonial motif was used. Steele Hall was transformed into a lovely replica of a colonial mansion and the guests were greeted by two colonial damsels.

Those members who were ably directed by Miss Irvine were: Georgana Abramson, Jean Badgett, Edna Mae Berry, Vivian Boone, Clarabelle Brouhard, Joye Brown, Jane Bryan, Henrietta Cline, Virginia Cox, Kathleen Cutler, Martha Dudman, Elsie Mae Duffy, Gladys Erickson, Grace Fern, Rubie Gibbs.

Caroline Greene, Florence Hagrelus, Marlyn Hopkins, Adaline Hunt, Jeanette Johnson, Dorothy Kennedy, Darlene Lonis, Frances Lundholm, Nellie McLaughlin, Geneva Megginson, Fern Meyer, Ruth Monson, Raynola Mulady, Alice Olin.

Jane Peabody, Elvira Peterson, Maxine Predmore, Joyce Remier, Dorothy Sharer, Bette Smallwood, Barbara Smith, Fern Sneder, Dorothy Sullivan, Elizabeth Swanberg, Edna Turner, Mariella Ullrich, Winifred VanDrunen, Evelyn Vondelo, Gertrude Walz, Leona Watters, Sarah Worrall.

The social season closed with each member saying "goodbye" until the next year.

Thespian

The following girls will remember Miss White as their adviser:

Marion Anderson, Nell Armstrong, Jean Beatty, Helen Bonesteel, Grace Burgett, Kathryn Burgland, Winifred Colton, Marion Cramer, Argyle Dallefeld, Florence Dexter, Mary Doyle, Betty Eldridge, Harriott Felt, Frances Gehring, Gwendolyn Gunther, Virginia Gunther.

Mary Hansen, Mary Hazen, Shirley Hendrix, Jayne Housel, Isabelle Jennings, Margaret Jane Johnson, Alice Kennedy, Helen Kost, Virginia Lauer, Mary McClanahan, Doris McKelvie, Marjorie McLain, Kathryn Magoon, Lucille Mangers, Enid Meadows, Barbara Meldrum.

Martha Nelson, Noel Nelson, Alice Olson, Miriam Parks, Virginia Parsons, Patsy Peak, Jeanne Peterson, Marion Peterson, Sarabeth Richardson, Jeanette Rose, Jean Rowe.

Wilma Schultz, Jean Scott, Anne Seeley, Jane Sperry, Ida Anne Stambaugh, Elizabeth Stickney, Jeanette Stoke, Babbette Strasburger, Mary Stuart, Marion Stuckey, Carolyn Tatham, June Tennery, Frances Tracy, Louise Webster, Reva Witherspoon, Patricia Wood, Mary Woolsey.

At the end of the year, Queen Elizabeth viewed with surprise the following activities of the Elizabethan ladies of 1935-36:

The ladies started their social season by joining with the Lincolns in entertaining the court with a play, "He Troops to Conquer."

A few weeks later they again entertained—this time with a Sport party.

The ladies continuing their social season entered the lists at this time to argue against other members of the court in formal debate. Those on the list were Jane Sperry, Frances Gehring and Nell Armstrong on the Affirmative, with Harriott Felt, Florence Dexter and Noel Nelson on the Negative. Queen Elizabeth was proud to see that her ladies placed second in the inter-club debates.

With much gaiety their mothers were royally entertained on St. Valentine's day.

The social season closed with the Spring Party on May 9, and a banquet held at the Galesburg Club, at which they said farewell to twenty-five of their royal ladies.

Boys' Science ~ ~ ~

Unrolling an old scroll marked "Ye Historie of Galesburg High School," we read the following in the list of club accomplishments for 1935-1936.

The Boys' Science Club was second in scholastic averages. They gave two projects for this year and last, in the form of scientific accessories. In club sports, the softball and swimming teams placed third, and the basketball team, last. The teams won two of four contests in club debates this season. "Sciences" were outstanding on the varsity football and basketball squad, as well as in chorus, orchestra and dramatics.

The social season opened with a fall party on December 7. The annual club banquet was held at the Elks Club on February 4, at which the main speech was given by Rev. Guthrie. The comedy, "Mixed Dates" presented with the Annies on February 19 was a most enjoyable event. The club's successful year closed with their spring party held on May 2.

s club adviser, Mr. Garst met with the following boys: Fred Apsey, John Barnstead, Roy Barnstead, Harold Bayless, Gale Benson, Dale Birdsall, Dail Bowman, Robert Bonney, Fred Bromberger, Robert Bromberger, Edward Callahan, John Cills, LaVerne DeForest, Donald Dulaney, Clemens Ekstrom, Curtis Erickson, Walter Felt, Rolland Fields, Gerald Fortman, Kenneth Freese.

With the organization of the Seneca Club, Mr. Swinton became leader of:

Byron Bacon, Gerald Boughan, Jack Brodine, James Case, Harrison Coffman, Raymond Dickerson, Russell Dodd, John Fulton, William Fuson, Clifford Garrett, John Gettemy, Jimmie Gianakis, Karl Hale, George Hicks, Leroy Johns.

"THE CIRCUS PARADE"

The bugles are blowing,
The bands are playing,
The circus is coming to town.
With beautiful ladies
On stately white horses
Quick! See that jolly old clown.
The impatient crowd is milling around
But now the parade has begun.
Here comes the band,
In splendorous array.
Elephants sway
From side to side
Look at those clowns
Everyone laughs,
No one is sad today.

—Maye Olson.

Seneca ~ ~

he Seneca Club is one of the up and coming clubs organized at the beginning of this year. The first problem facing the club was the selection of a name. After much discussion the name of Seneca was chosen.

Entering into the softball competition, the club, while not ranking very high, furnished strong competition for all opponents.

In the basketball tournament, a team of championship calibre tied for first place.

When the day for the annual inter-club swimming meet arrived, the Senecans indicated a preference for terra firma as only two members participated in the aquatic events, and they failed to garner any laurels.

On April 17, the club joined with the Americans and Sequoians for a spring party.

The Senecas are looking ahead to a great future after their successful start.

American

The American Literary Club spent a busy season in every field of activity this year. They responded to the soft-ball league last fall with a good team, and were represented by a very good basketball team ably coached by a club member and a former varsity player, Earl "Stretch" Johnson. As debate season opened they again entered the inter-club tournament. The Americans are very proud of the fact that one of their number, James Smith, was chosen for the North West Conference team.

At the boys' swimming meet held March 25, Charles Morss, Rolland Root, James Stairwalt, Emerson Preston, Wayne Hough, entered from the American Club.

The purposes of the Americans have been to further the best interest of the school and provide enjoyment and profit in well planned programs.

As an able leader Mr. Slaven worked with the following American boys:

John Berry, Eugene Clay, Robert Durbin, Philip Erlandson, Marshall Fones, Earl Foster, William Green, John Hart, Wayne Hough, Arthur Jacobson, Earl Johnson, Kenneth L. Johnson, Roy Johnson, Owen Kelly, Robert Krase, Cecil Law, Clifford Magoon, Max McArthur.

Richard McKay, Harlan Miles, Jesse Morris, Charles Morss, Earl Nelson, Ernest Nelson, Lyle Packingham, Emerson Preston.

Paul Randell, Everett Reeves, William Richardson, John Rogers, Rolland Root, Don Searl, Philip Smith, Charles Stewart, Dale Strong, Merritt Taylor.

George Wardell, Charles Wilsam, Jack Wright.

SPRING FEVER

Warmer days,
Lazy ways,
Mental haze,
Spring is near.

Forgotten books,
Expectant looks,
At swollen brooks,
Spring is here.

—Louise Webster.

Unlike Lincoln, he is not modest; unlike Washington, he is not silent and reserved, but like himself he is genial, clever, and energetic. We salute one, who, in two short years, has elevated speech work to a major activity by producing winning debate teams and outstanding plays. Of course we mean—Mr. White.

The Rivals! ~ ~

Hamlet's advice to the players, "Speak the speech, I pray you, as I pronounced it to you, trippingly on the tongue," was observed by the declamation team: Betty Eldridge, Barbara Lewis, Velma Mizner, Noel Nelson, Harriet Ryan, first place, and Mary Weaver, second. Harriet Ryan, reading a cutting from "Macbeth", proved her ability by winning the North West Conference gold medal. Those who ranked highest in the sophomore declamatory contest were Marian Cramer, Mary Stephenson, Carolyn Tatham, Eloise Tupper and Louise Webster.

In oratory the winners of the sophomore contest, Bob White, Judson Harlan, and Robert Bromberger, joined with Russell Brown, Glover Carley, first place, Thornton Freda, John Highlander, Ted Szerlong and Oliver Warner, second. Glover Carley tied for third in the Conference contest with his selection, "We Must Fight."

Those people who speak on a variety of topics, or who are otherwise known as extemporaneous speakers, were coached most capably by Mr. Jennings. The team was: Robert Linrothe, James Smith, Carolyn Tatham, Louise Webster, Robert White and Barbara Young.

Using "The Japanese Crisis" as her subject, Carolyn Tatham who represented the high school at Moline won fourth place.

tate Medicine, it seems, becomes a vital issue when weighed by the glib tongues and agile minds of our debaters. However, more than mere loquacity is required of the good debater for it is generally recognized that the preparation for this activity must be both thorough and arduous.

We have every reason to feel proud of our two debate teams and their splendid record of losing only one conference debate out of five, thus winning second in the North West Conference League.

Besides our regular conference debates with Kewanee, Moline, Monmouth, East Moline and Rock Island, we also held practice debates with Burlington, Geneseo, Macomb and Western Academy. The usual practice was followed this year in choosing the debate teams. After eighteen people had been chosen for the debate board, two teams were made up from among them by means of intra-school and outside practice debates.

Every member of the debate board is to be complimented upon his diligence and hard work. The result of their efforts speak for themselves.

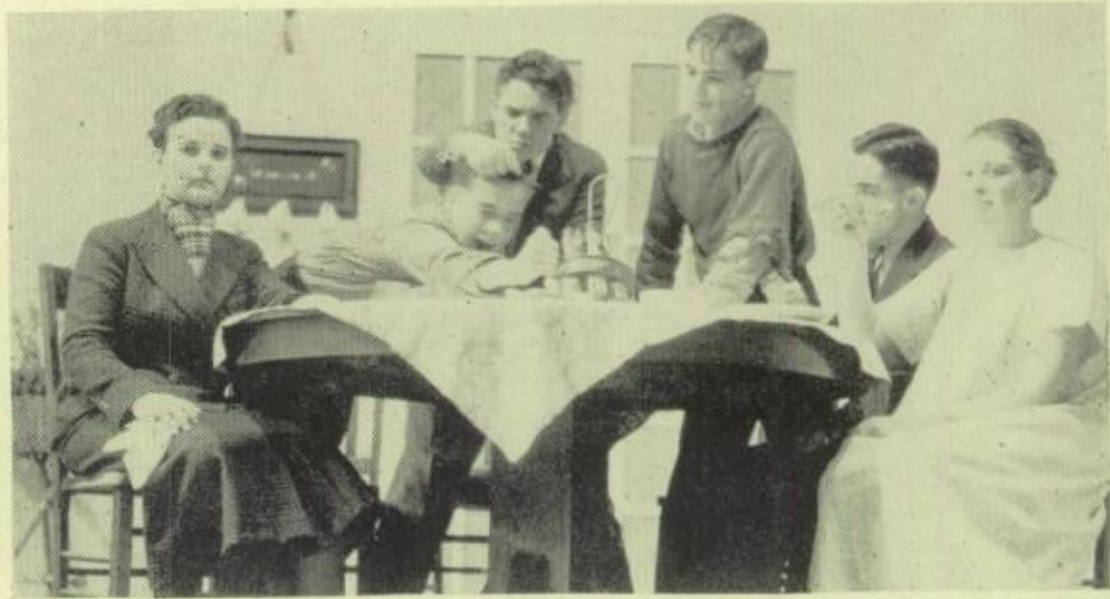

Battle of Wits ~ ~ ~

As important as the cast are the students who assist the director back-stage. They were: Forest Barton, Robert Billings, Donald Bradley, John Cills, Richard Doyle, Gladys Erickson, Gwendolyn Gunther, Isabelle Jennings, Edward Johnson, Mary Jones, Charles Lipsky, Robert Linrothe, Lois Lund, Robert Mariner, Franklin Meade, Armon Miller, Robert Mower, Sarabeth Richardson, Jessie Robinson, Harriet Ryan, Anita Sand, Stanley Tulin, Eula Walberg, Marian Youngren.

Depicting the home life of the average American family, the annual P. T. A. play, "Big Hearted Herbert," was extremely amusing but also discussed which parent should have the major influence in guiding the destinies of the children.

Herbert Kalness, a self-made man, is a believer in "old-fashioned plainness." He decrees that his son is to work in the factory instead of going to college; and that Alice cannot marry Andrew Goodrich, a Boston lawyer, because his family is prominent socially. The submissive Mrs. Kalness decides it is time to interfere and proves to Herbert that his "old-fashioned plainness" is verbal rather than actual, thus reconciling the family differences.

Produced with fine attention to detail for which our speech department is becoming well known, "Big Hearted Herbert" ranks among the most successful plays ever given by the high school. Not only were the players "at home" in their roles, but they were supported by a capable back-stage crew.

Behind footlights

Sleep! Sleep! ~ ~ ~

"Out, out, brief candle!

Life's but a walking shadow, a poor player
That struts and frets his hour upon the stage
And then is heard no more."

Famous words from a famous play—and it is the sincere hope of the speech department that their efforts to prove that Shakespeare is not only great as literature, but also as drama, have not been spent in vain.

Ambitious Macbeth, Glover Carley, spurred on by his wife Lady Macbeth, Harriet Ryan, hopes to usurp the throne of Duncan, King of Scotland, Robert Cabeen. He murders Duncan and by foul acts becomes king. However, several noblemen, among them Banquo, Fred Bromberger and Macduff, Robert Young, plot to seize the throne from Macbeth and restore the rightful heir, Malcolm, John Highlander. Haunted by her misdeeds Lady Macbeth dies, and Macbeth with all hope gone is overcome in a duel with Macduff.

Others in the cast included:

Ralph Powless, Ross; Ruth Risburg, Noel Nelson, Georgia Mae Johnson, Witches; Dean Lester, John Cills, James Smith, Murderers; Edward Johnson, Donalbain; Lawrence Witherbee, Lennox; Robert Bohan, Angus; Robert Bromberger, Fleance; Glenn Lashbrook, Seyton; Oliver Warner, Doctor; Mary Weaver, Genelwoman; Robert Linrothe, Porter.

The back-stage crew of "Macbeth" was headed by the following people: Assistant Director, Marion Stuckey; Stage Manager, Edward Johnson; Light Manager, Robert Linrothe; Costume Manager, Anita Sand; Property Manager, Mary Weaver.

" - - - the innocent sleep,
Sleep that knits up the raveled
sleave of care,
The death of each day's life,
sore labor's bath,
Balm of hurt minds, great
nature's second course,
Chief nourisher in life's feast."

Editors-in-chief for the year were Glover Carley and Noel Nelson. Stanley Schreiber served as business manager both semesters. Managing editors were Noel Nelson and Blanche Cordell; copy editors, Glenrose Colver, Georgia May Johnson and Jessie Robinson; Alice Brown, features; Ralph Powless and John Woolsey managing sports.

Make-up editors were: Glenrose Colver and Marion Hawkinson; exchange editors, Virginia Sands and Mary Elizabeth Doyle; Mary Marsden, librarian; typists, Mary Jeanette Hurst, Virginia Sands and Ivine Teel.

The reporting staff consisted of Georgana Abramson, Bettye Brent, Esther Carmody, Dorothy Connolly, Wilma Goodale, Rosemary Johnson, Herbert Pihl, Philip Smith, Howard Utt and Oliver Warner.

Underclass representatives were Robert Billings, Mary Hansen and Carolyn Tatham for the sophomores, and Virginia Mae Hughes and Sara Swagert for the juniors.

The boys who made up the mechanical staffs were Durward Bell, Jasper Danna, Raymond Dickerson, Richard Fisher, James Gianakis, Steneth Larson, Joseph Ligman, Raymond Nelson, Paul Randell and Everett Wenn.

Early last fall we of the Budget staff were called together and told we were to be one advisory. Little did we dream then of how much, during the course of the year, we were to become an integrated unit, learning to know each other as we worked and planned together in the publishing of our weekly.

Throughout the year we published our quota of thirty-two issues. In all, our objective has been the faithful exposition of the news, the interpretation of the news through the editorial, and the casting of human and often humorous sidelights on the news through the feature story.

At the beginning of the second semester the traditional date of publication was changed from Friday to Wednesday.

So with grateful acknowledgements to Miss Nickel, our editorial adviser, to the printing staff and their adviser, Mr. Damberg, to the linotype man at the Labor News, to the office force, faculty and students, members of the Budget staff of 1935-36 closed their year as the "news hounds" of the school.

line a day ~ ~

Bookworms ~ ~ ~ ~

The Book Worms of the senior class this year did not go into hibernation, as is characteristic of that animal. As a matter of fact, the Reflector staff became livelier as the temperature went lower. Each day brought more pictures to be taken, write-ups to be assigned, and preparations for the Matinee dances, which by the way, were the first of their kind in Galesburg High School.

It is known that no two people or two things are alike, not even worms. The year of 1935-36 brought many different changes in the Reflector; informal pictures, from the student body, the faculty, individual sophomore pictures, the enlarging of every class picture, and the page with the Galesburg High School seal.

The worm is known to move, not by legs but by stretching. We, the Reflector staff, hope that we have stretched out, reached and brought forth in picture and in print all the incidents of high school life that you wish to keep in your memories as you "Remember the Day."

he Reflector Matinee dance was one of the many new features in high school life this year. Dancing to the rhythm of Karl Aldrich's orchestra at Steele Hall, the students waltzed from 4:15 until 5:30.

The Christmas spirit was at its highest when the gym was decorated in true style by the school Christmas tree presented by the Budget, which previously had stood in the hall of the Main building. A grand march was held and even old Santa was there.

Due to the intensely warm winter, a Snowball party was held for the benefit of those who hadn't seen snow for a long time.

Popeye and Olive Oyl were present at another dance along with Sweetpea and Wimpy, the hamburger fiend.

Portraying the typical March weather, a Kite Party was held the twentieth of the month. Kites made by the Art department were flying in the breeze. At the last three dances the free Reflectors were given away. Bethel Paul was the lucky one at the first drawing.

The members of the council were:

Karl Aldrich, Robert Allison, Phyllis Bird, Robert Bohan, Alice Brown, Katherine Burgland, Jane Culver, LaVerne DeForest, Jack Doyle, Harriott Felt, Dale Florer, Mary Franz, Thornton Freda, Charles Goldstone, Jayne Housel, Virginia Hughes, Pearl Johnson, Robert Johnson, Dale Lackey, Vivian Larson, Barbara Lewis, Robert Linrothe, Norma Lundeen, William McCollum, Irene McCullough, Robert Mureen, Adria Nelson, Dale Nelson, Harold Nelson, Alice Olson, Kathryn Parnell, George Poulos, Edward Riley, Jean Rowe, Mary Jane Stevens, LaVerne Swigart, Carolyn Tatham, Louis Vitali, Mary Weaver, Grayce Wicall, Lawrence Witherbee.

The duties and requirements of these worthy students is outlined by Mr. Moyer at their first meeting of the year, and Miss Swanson calls the roll at each meeting. Their service is of great value to the school.

Criers ~ ~

Buy your basketball tickets now to avoid standing in line at the ticket office"—"Subscribe for the Budget early and get a reduction"—"Payments of Reflector are now due"—"Regional and District tournaments to be held in our gym—Lots of fun signing programs—Everyone should go"—came the calls of forty-one School Criers in their respective advisories.

One of these capable persons is chosen by the members of each advisory and through them there is a contact between the students and the faculty. Not only do these students have honorable characters and a good scholastic standing, but they are also rich in the gift of oratory, for it was their duty to inspire their fellow-students to buy tickets for the plays, football and basketball games, and to give their best efforts toward every campaign and school activity. The School Criers, hustling about the halls faithfully executing their many duties, constitute one of the most important organizations of the school.

Waving the baton

Throughout the pages of history we find the armies of conquest marching to the blare of trumpets and the roll of drums. In much the same way, the students of G. H. S. had a truly inspiring band to lead them against the foe.

Braving the chill autumnal winds, the blue clad musicians marched with military precision, lending dash and color to the football season. During the basketball days they were again on hand to cheer and encourage the team. In addition to their appearances on the field of battle, they performed skillfully in several assemblies.

Greatly enjoyed by band members was the trip to Peoria, where, with over forty bands, they participated in a gala parade.

At the close of the year the senior class marched out to the strains of the band as it brought a most successful season to an end.

The students can well be proud of the band, both for its musical attainments and for the pep and enthusiasm inspired.

Members of the band are:

John Ekstrom, Harold Guenther, Gwendolyn Gunther, Virginia Gunther, Richard Hartley, Clyde Hofflund, Reed Hunt, Robert Ingram, Fred Jackson, Marcel Johnson, Pearl Johnson, Robert L. Johnson, Roy Johnson, Arnold Kemp, George Kemp.

Cecil Law, Kenneth Law, Donald McKamy, Lucille Mangers, George Mead, John Meldrum, Jack Mercer, Francis Moran, Raynola Mulady, Donald Peterson, Henry Philleo, Howard Porter, Kermit Raaen, Edward Riley.

Anita Sand, Anne Seeley, James Sloan, Jane Sperry, Marion Stuckey, Wanda Strawn, Louis Switzer, Frank Tate, Herman Von Langen, Frank Wallace, Paula Lou Wallace, Robert Weber, John Whipple, Louise Wood, Ruth Wood, Robert Wright, Robert Young.

Splendid performances—band—orchestra—operetta—chorus—due to an inspiring director—capable—hard working—likeable personality—we can well be proud of Mr. Lantz and his fine work.

And music, too—dear music!
That can touch
Beyond all else the soul that loves it much—
Now heard far off, so far as but to seem
Like the faint, exquisite music of a dream.

—Moore.

Musical Notes

In October, twenty-seven members of the orchestra were organized into the Little Symphony, a miniature symphony preserving the same comparative relation as in the full orchestra. Practicing after school hours, the group played at a musical assembly, for the school-masters' banquet, for Lombard and Hitchcock Junior High Schools, and for the operetta.

Members of the band and orchestra this year formed the personnel of various ensembles—a string trio, a brass quartet, a clarinet quartet, a woodwind quintet, and a string quartet. These groups furnished music on several occasions—P. T. A. meetings, plays, speech events, and at banquets. Selections played ranged from standard classics to the better popular numbers. In the string trio were Fred Bromberger, violin; Robert Young, 'cello; Marion Stuckey, piano. The brass quartet included Karl Aldrich and Bettye Brent, trumpets; Francis Moran, horn; Oliver Warner, trombone; and Betty Miller, piano. Richard Hartley, Lucille Mangers, Raymond Johnson and Donald McKamy comprised the clarinet quartet. The string quartet was composed of Frances Emstrom and Marjory Gustafson, violins; Fred Bromberger, viola; Robert Young, 'cello. Members of the woodwind quintet were Jane Sperry, flute; Gwendolyn Gunther, oboe; Virginia Gunther, horn; Paul Davis, clarinet; Robert Wright, bassoon. With the formation of this large group of ensembles has come an increased interest in music.

During the season of 1935-36 the air in Galesburg High School has been very much alive with the vibrations of music. A new director, new music, and the organization of several ensembles, notably a "Little Symphony," have furthered musical development of the orchestra—a development evident in the annual concert.

More difficult music was rehearsed and performed this year than previously. Besides regular rehearsals of the full orchestra, weekly practice sessions of the string section were held. Weeks of intensive preparation culminated in the annual concert on May 8, when the orchestra presented Schubert's "March Militaire;" the first movement of Schubert's "Unfinished Symphony;" Sibelius' "Valse Triste;" Tchaikowsky's "Trepak" from the "Nutcracker Suite;" Bach's "Air on the G String;" "In the Mill" by Gillet for string orchestra; Stringfield's "Cripple Creek" from the "Southern Mountains Suite;" and Hadley's "Ballet of the Flowers."

In choosing this music Mr. Lantz set a goal toward which his orchestra strove with notable results.

Orchestra members are:
Karl Aldrich, John Barnstead, Maynard Binge, Willard Binge, Orland Bowes, Bettye Brent, Fred Bromberger, Robert Bromberger, Rolland Brooks, Gordon Brown, Darlene Burch, Barbara Burkhalter, Joseph Davis, Paul Davis, Frances Emstrom, Eugene Frankeberger.

Harold Guenther, Gwendolyn Gunther, Virginia Gunther, Marjorie Gustafson, Jean Harshbarger, Richard Hartley, Marion Hawkinson, Edward Johnson, Georgia Johnson, Pearl Johnson, Rosa Johnson, Alice Kennedy, Dorothy Kennedy, Cecil Law, Dean Lester, Constance Lindbloom.

Lucille Mangers, George Meade, John Meldrum, Fern Miller, Marna Jeanne Mills, Francis Moran, Howard Potter, Paul Randell, Anne Seeley, Jane Sperry, Lois Stewart, Max Stubbs, Paula Lou Wallace, Oliver Warner, Robert Weber, John Whipple, Charles Wilsam, Sarah Worrall, Robert Wright, Robert Young.

"Last meeting of Service League will be held today"—with these words the school crier once more circled the school. As the crowd began to increase, she began relating the events of the year.

"At the first meeting of the Service League, new members were admitted into the organization with the usual impressive induction rites. The burning emblem of the League consists of a white cross surrounded by a circle mounted on a white square. The white square represents the four fold life, social, physical, mental and spiritual development; the blue circle stands for service and growth in mind, spirit and body; the white cross stands for the life of Him, whose name we bear; the candles represent to us the life He burnt out for us. With these thoughts in mind, the girls became members of the Service League.

"Regular meetings were held twice a month, alternating Bible study with other programs. Speakers included Miss Moffitt who spoke on her trip to France, Mrs. Sheldon who told of her trip to Mexico, and Mrs. Bechtel who described her Alaskan trip.

"The events of the year were terminated by the annual spring banquet.

"Senior officers of the year were: Presidents, Gwendolyn Gunther and Winifred Colton; Vice-Presidents, Mary Weaver and Marion Stuckey; Secretaries, Anita Sand and Bettye Brent; Treasurers, Ruth Mason and Georgia Mae Johnson. The executive committee for the year was composed of the officers together with Lowanda Lee, Jayne Housel and Velma Mizner.

"The success of the League this year was largely due to the able leadership of Miss Cox."

Her work well done, the school crier continued on her way, unfolding other bits of news to the school.

"My candle burns at both its ends

It will not last the night

But ah my foes and oh my friends

It gives a lovely light."

o Aid

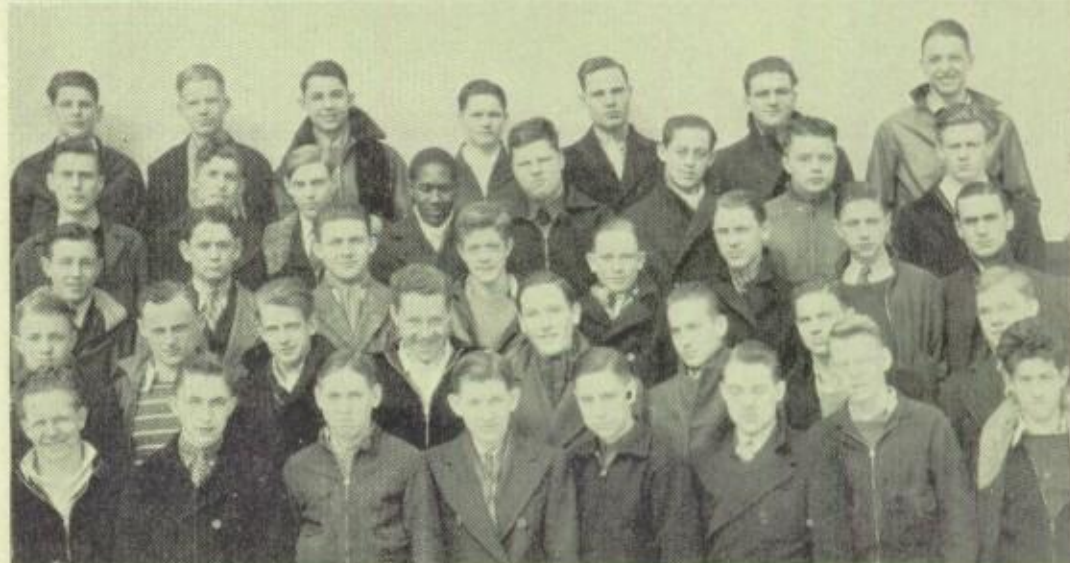

The members of the Boys' Forum have again concluded a successful year of programs and activities. The principal aim of the group has always been to promote and maintain the ideals of the four C's, clean living, clean speech, clean scholarship and clean athletics. Since it is composed of nearly all the junior and senior boys the Forum brings the realization of these ideals to a large part of the student body. Its influence has a marked effect in bettering school and community life as well as bettering the life of each member.

The bi-monthly meetings of the Forum proved to be as enjoyable as they were instructive. Appreciative members heard varied programs such as, travel talks on Alaska and Europe, a challenge for getting the most from life, an explanation of the Italo-Ethiopian situation and some helpful talks dealing with problems relating to college life.

Some of these programs were presented by members of the organization. On most occasions, however, outside

To woo and tempt and court a bliss, and not attain it:
To fondle and caress a joy; yet hold it lightly,
Lest it become necessity and cling too tightly:
To watch the sun set in the west without regretting:
To hail its advent in the east, the night forgetting:
To smother care in happiness and grief in laughter:
To hold the present close—not questioning hereafter:
To have enough to share—to know the joy of giving:
To thrill with all the sweets of life—is living.

MY SYMPHONY

To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury; and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable; and wealthy, not rich; to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars and birds, to babes and sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasion, hurry never; in a word, to let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious grow up through the common. This is to be my symphony.

—William Henry Channing.

speakers or members of the faculty spoke to the group on topics of interest. As in past years several joint meetings were held with the Girls' Service League.

The major project of the Forum was to assist the Empty Stocking Club with their annual Christmas party at the Armory. The volunteer committees from the school helped to assemble and distribute the toys and refreshments. All of those who assisted in making this annual event a success felt amply repaid for their efforts and considered it a privilege to have a part in making others happy at the Christmas season.

Mr. Crawford and Mr. Bednar were advisers for the organization. The officers for the year were: Presidents: Glover Carley, Robert Cabeen; Vice-Presidents: Fred Bromberger, Herbert Pihl; Secretaries, Vincent Levinson, LaVerne Swigart; Treasurers, James Watson, George Poulos.

The members of the cast included: Kasper Kroggins, Robert Cabeen; Mrs. Kroggins, Harriet Ryan; Jean Kroggins, Marian Anderson; Joe Brown, Donald Peterson; Jerry Kennedy, Fred Bromberger; Tilly, Milly and Billy, LaVern Stewart, Anita Sand and Velma Mizner; "Dynamo Dave", Gene Pendergast; Mitzi, Ida Ann Stambaugh; Bob, Robert Mureen; J. Bottomly-Binks, Donald McKamy; Archibald Throckmorton, Robert Thorne; Lysander Phelps, Rex Selk.

Forty boys and girls from the classes of Miss Terry and Mr. Lantz added much to the general success of the operetta by appearing as the chorus in the production. Miss Cyprean- sen was in charge of the dances. The accompaniment was played by the Little Symphony.

We're on the air!

"Tune in to our croonin', you'll soon be in paradise"—so run the words of the intriguing title song of the operetta, "Tune In," presented with snap and finesse by the entire music department. In contrast to operettas of past seasons, "Tune In" was extremely modern, being a satire on broadcasting. The operetta was much enlivened by a gypsy dance, a waltz by two of the principals, a tap dance, and a novelty dance by the trio.

Joe Brown, owner of station WTNT believes success is his after receiving a contract from a Mr. Kroggins to advertise Kroggins' Kippered Kodfish. Unfortunately, Mrs. Kroggins, an atrocious singer, insists upon being the featured star. Feeling that she would surely ruin the program, Joe allows Mitzi, the telephone girl who really can sing, to substitute for her, but the secret is discovered and Mrs. Kroggins causes her husband to revoke the contract, thus bankrupting Joe. However, Mitzi's voice wins her a motion picture contract, and Joe finds his true love in Jean Kroggins, and a way out of his financial difficulties so the curtain falls on a happy finale.

Athletics

Readers, all! ~ ~

In centuries past there existed a group of chivalrous men known as knights. Each knight was bound by vows of allegiance to everything good and holy. Bravery and courtesy were his natural pursuits.

The process of becoming a knight was not as easy as one might imagine. One first had to be a page or sort of glorified servant to a member of this order. The next step toward the goal was that of a squire. He acted in the same capacity as does a substitute on our modern baseball team. Finally, if the applicant had faithfully completed all tasks assigned to him and had exhibited only noteworthy traits of character, he was knighted.

The impression should not be gained that the knights were without relaxation and enjoyment. Their participation in many jousts and tournaments enlivened their lives.

Just as the knights in the days of old had their jousts and tournaments, so do we have our games and contests of today. In our modern athletics we, too, have certain requirements which we must meet in order to compete. These may be likened to requirements with which the knights of old were confronted.

However, if a comparison is to be made between the knights and their jousts and we with our athletic contests as to benefits gained from participation, it is easy to see that we have an advantage over them in this respect. It is our privilege and opportunity to be instructed and coached by masters of the games we play. Thus easily we see that with the aid of these instructors many desirable features of our contests are set forth.

We have in our school today three people who are directly responsible for our athletics, namely: Mr. Gillespie, athletic director, track and football coach; Mr. Phillips, basketball coach, and Miss Cypreansen, girls' supervisor. Then too, the athletic managers play an important part in helping a team reach its goal. It is to these coaches and managers that we owe our debt of gratitude.

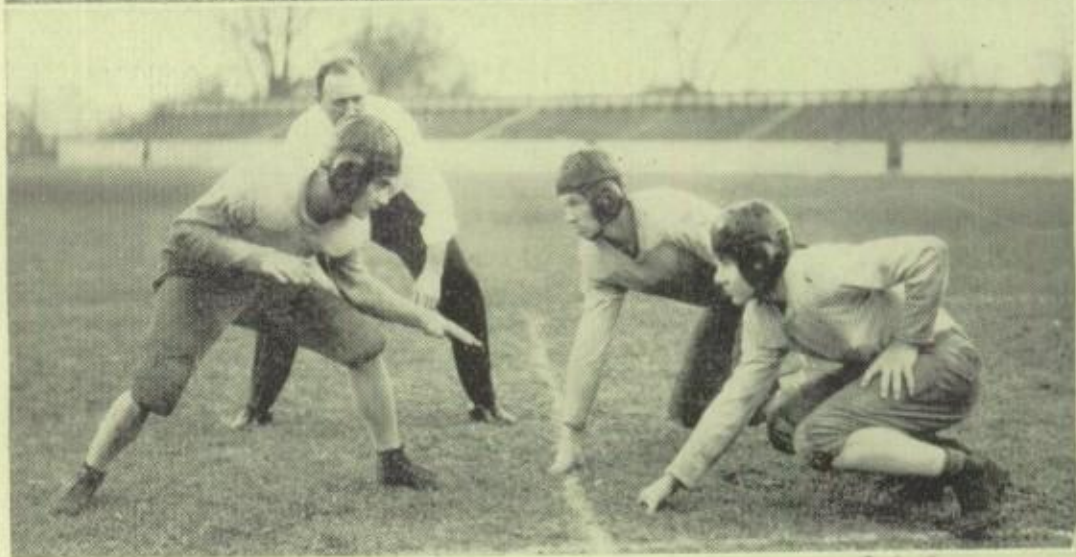

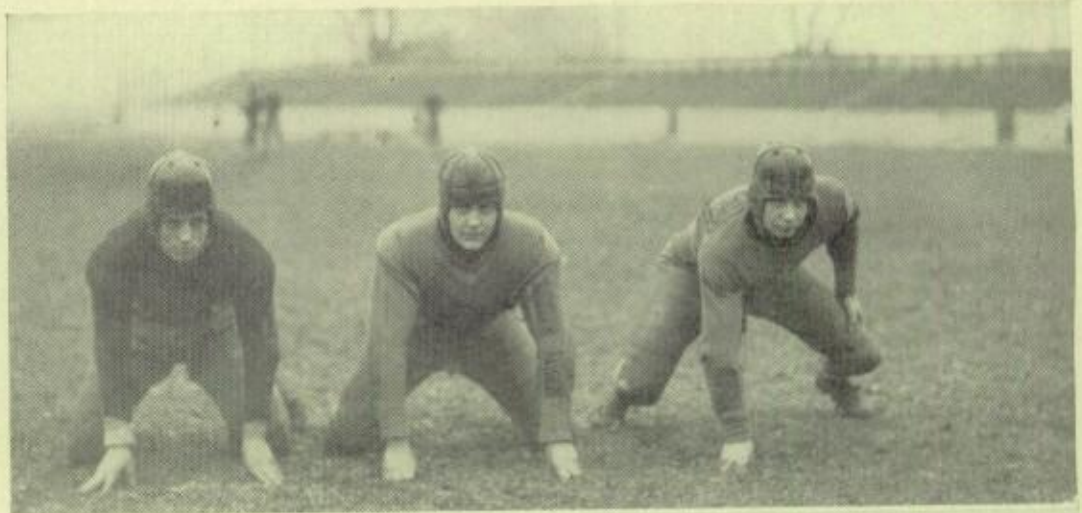

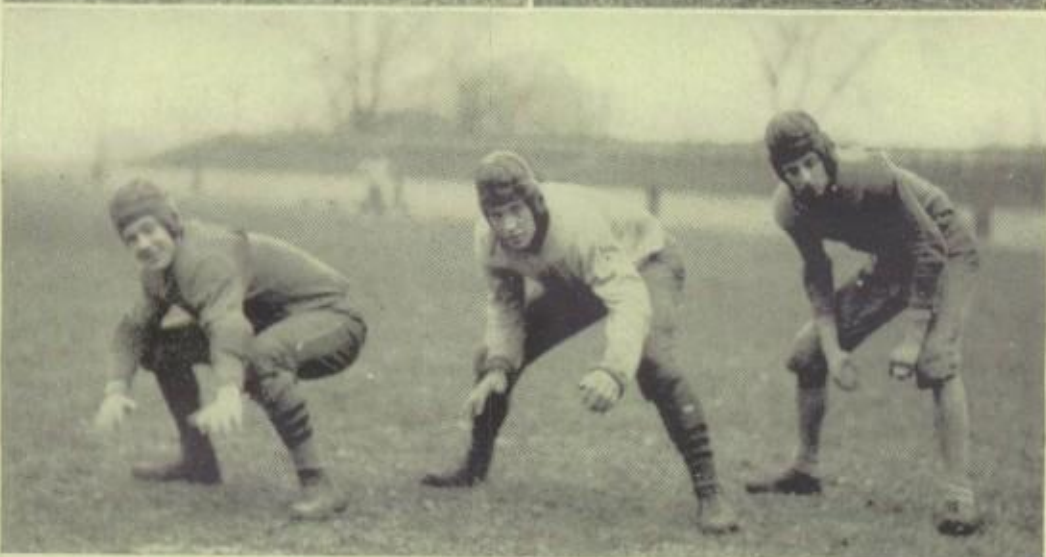

As the warriors of the grid-iron went forth into battle this past season, they met not only the gladiators of other schools but also the all powerful Lady Luck. Her frown seemed perpetual to the players and followers of G.H.S.

The schedule that faced the Tigers was perhaps the most talented group of footballers ever arranged for the high school.

The strong Hawkeye team from Burlington tripped Galesburg in the first contest of the season for the Burgers 24-6. Next Davenport, one of the strongest teams in the country, defeated the Tigers 18-0. Then came East Moline and Moline, the runners-up and winners respectively of the North Western Conference, to do battle with our team. These encounters were also disastrous for Galesburg, East Moline winning 34-7 and Moline, 26-0.

It was at this stage of the schedule that the team, in spite of almost insurmountable odds, improved noticeably. Despite this noteworthy advancement they lost close battles to Rock Island 14-0, Macomb 7-0 and Peoria Manual 34-7.

Here the impetus of the new found inspiration pushed the Burghers forth to victory. Kewanee, whose championship team of last year was considered by many as the best in the state, fell to the hard fighting Galesburg crew despite a muddy, rain soaked field. The score of 7-6 indicates the hard-fought battle which took place.

Monmouth journeyed to Galesburg for the final game of the season. The Scots, although not possessors of a brilliant record, did have a good team, but an inspired G. H. S. team defeated them 13-6. Thus proving the old adage—"All's well that ends well."

Cug of War

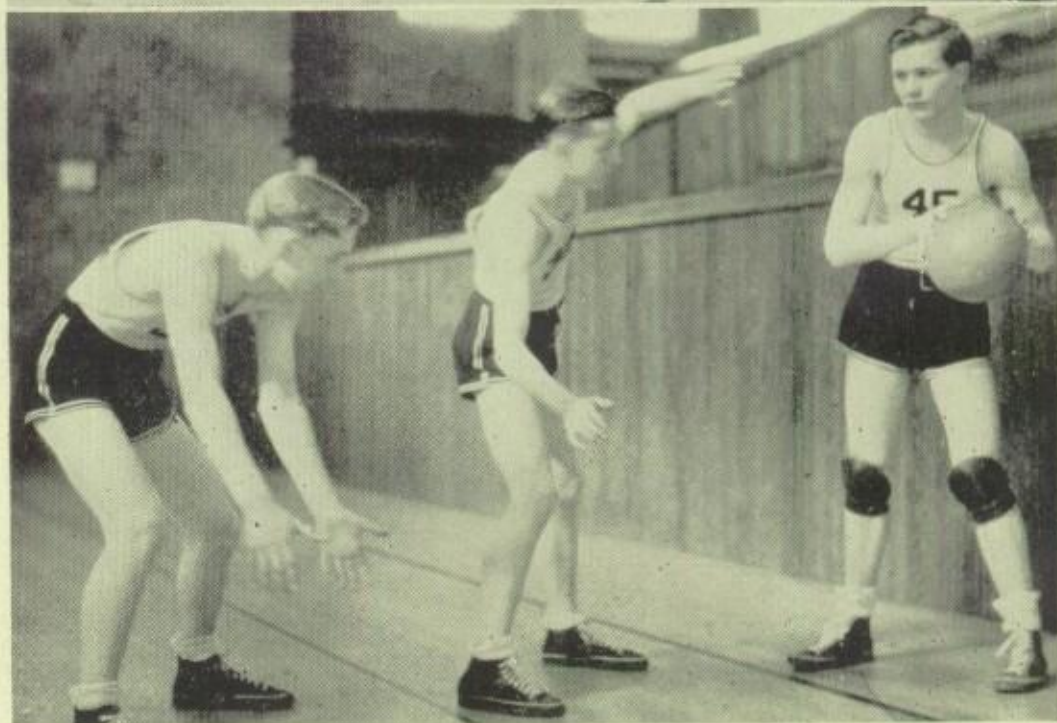

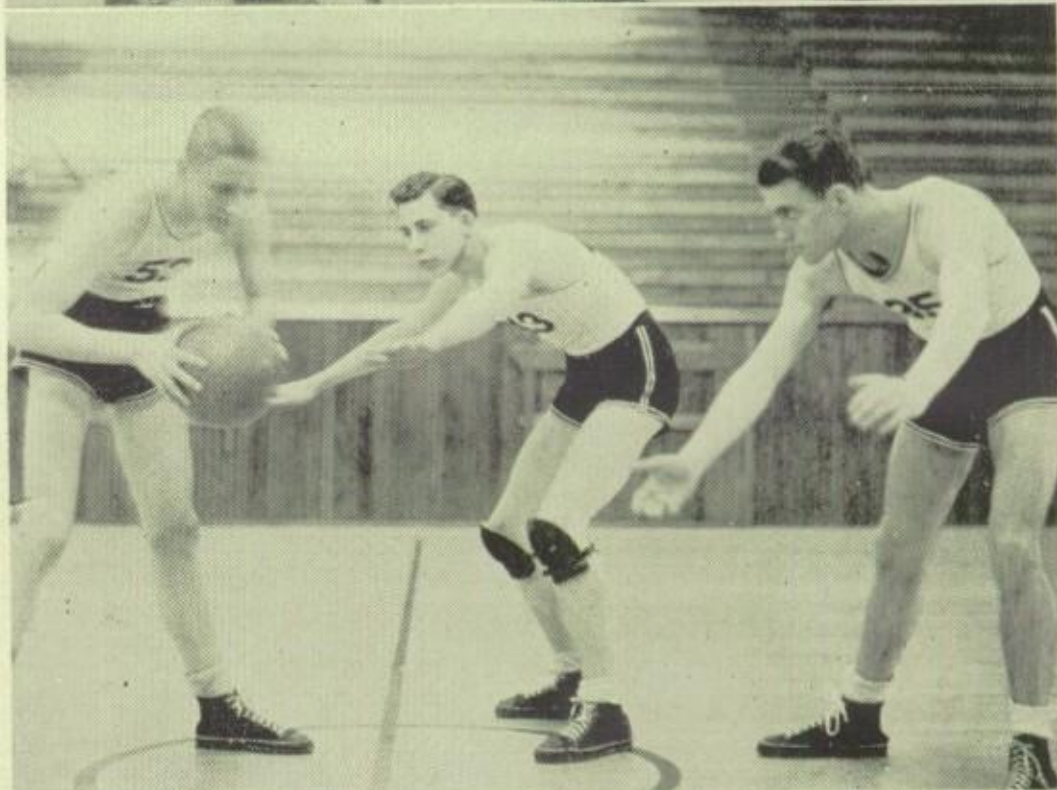

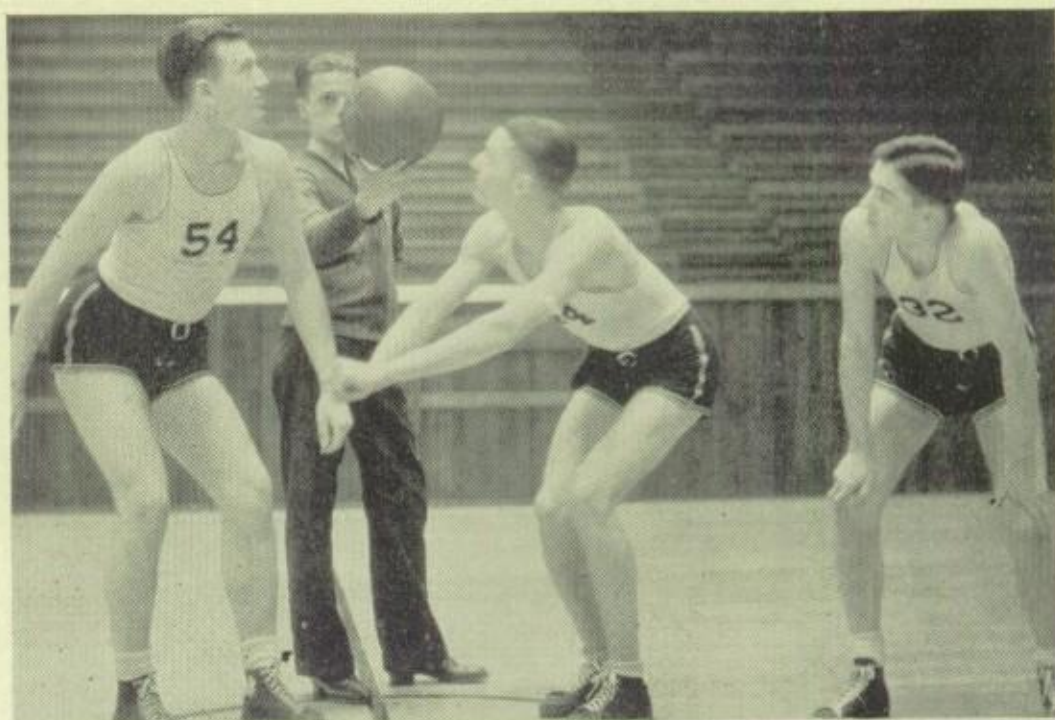

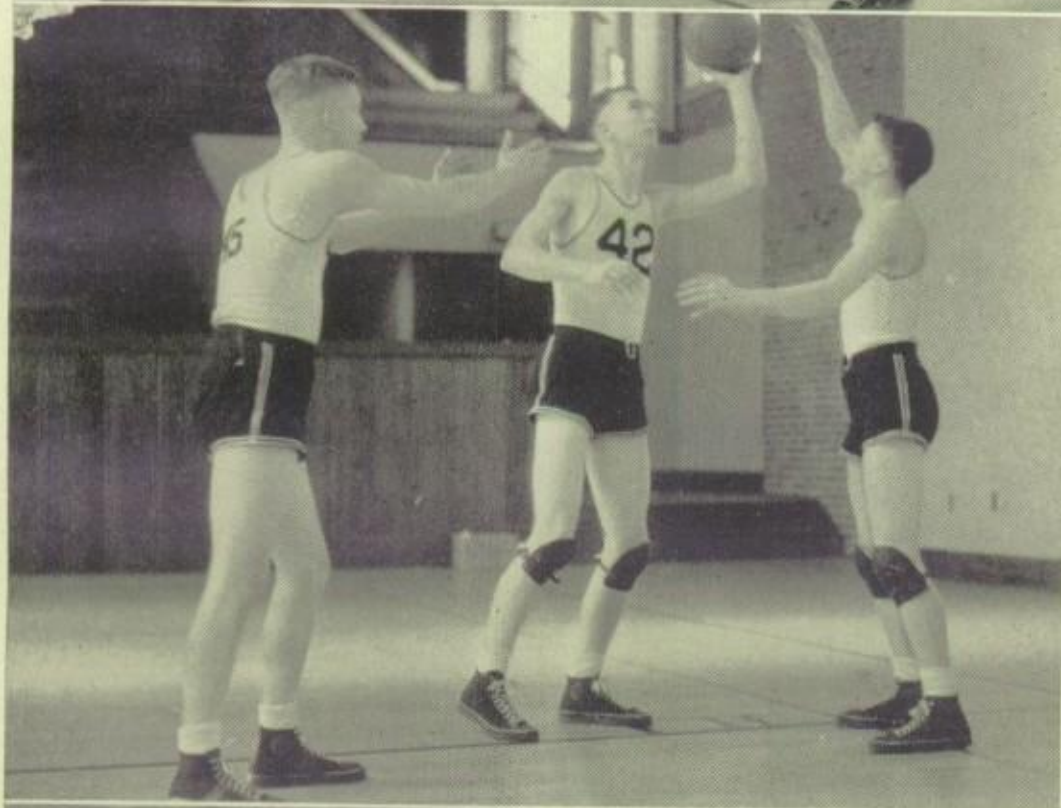

aced at the beginning of the season with the remains of last year's conference championship team, which was almost completely wrecked by the annual devastator, graduation, Coach Phillips built a quintet which enjoyed better than average success. While not as constant winners as the '35 chapter of G. H. S. basketball, this year's squad displayed powerful and potential strength at times. The skill of the basketballers was never quite revealed, due chiefly to inexperience.

The season opened with an auspicious beginning. After losing the encounter with Burlington by one point, the Black and White Warriors defeated Springfield and Peoria Central in order.

However, this type of basketball did not prevail throughout the season. Rock Island was victorious by one point, although Monmouth proved an easy victim. Kewanee, Moline, Canton and East Moline showed their power by downing Galesburg in close games.

Despite these heartbreaking defeats, which proved that the Silver Streaks were as good losers as winners, they proceeded to climb from last place in the N. W. C. standing to a tie for second place at the completion of the season. In the process of this ascension Rock Island, Monmouth, Kewanee, Moline and East Moline fell to the fighting Burghers. Canton, however, again proved too good for the Scarlet Scrouges and emerged victor by a small margin.

Galesburg again won the Regional tournament title, but was defeated by East Moline, one of the strongest teams in the state.

'Mid the clamor and noise-making of four-hundred students of Galesburg High School, three voices could be heard above all the rest. "Come on, let's go, 'Yea Gold, Yea White,' make it big now!" The silence caused by these three figures clad in gold and silver, is soon broken by an organized yell from the throats of loyal students. After leading the fans in the yell, Dale Tracy, Ed Thrune and Bob Howe bringing up the rear, trot off the gym floor again to watch the G. H. S. cagers win a game.

The minute before the tip-off, the customary yell of "Go, Galesburg, Go, Go, Galesburg, G-a-l-e-s-b-u-r-g; Go, Galesburg, Go!" This yell is considered as the "good luck" yell of the Silver Streaks. Due to the three yell leaders, the loyal school spirit remained in the heart of every student.

The Olympites

Perhaps the most ancient in character, of all our athletics is that of track. It was originated by the Greeks many years ago. They were idealists in every sense of the word and to them this running and jumping that we today call track was an extremely important factor to the livelihood and health of each individual. To perfect one's self physically was regarded by the Greeks as the highest goal which one could attain. Although these people were noted for their thinking and their knowledge, their physical accomplishments are today ranked as equal to those virtues. Today we have these same contests, the ones which were regarded with so much admiration by the Greeks of centuries ago that have come to us through the long space of time.

Such sports include: Broad jump; Hurdles; High jump; Discus; Dash; Pole vault; Mile run and Javelin throw.

his year inaugurated an inter-class track meet. The purpose of this type of undertaking is to stimulate interest in track and to give the track men experience in actual competition. Also this past year Galesburg competed in the Geneseo relays, the North West meet, the state meets, and the Pekin Relays besides a dual and a triangular contest. Although the athletes of days gone by became extremely proficient at these arts they in no way approximate the records that we have made and are constantly improving.

substituted for club football in 1934, they have already gained considerable popularity among the members of the various boys' clubs. Even wider interest resulted in the second annual tournament in October, when three additional teams participated — those of the Seneca, Sequoia, and Americans.

Only one round was played and the embryo softball champions braved various rainstorms and other minor handicaps, but they ran the tournament off in good order with a minimum of friction which usually occurs at softball games.

Each year finds club sports advancing into a more prominent place in the extra-curricular activities of the school. Since non-varsity players are given an opportunity to display their talents, and good sportsmanship is always in evidence, it would seem that their popularity is well deserved.

Fluctuating like the stock market were the standings of clubs in this year's softball tournament. The Lincolns, by winning their first three games, captured the lead, but in the latter part of the contest it was seriously threatened by the Franklins. However, at the crucial moment they were defeated by the Collectors which prevented them from tying with the Lincolns, who thus won the trophy for the second time.

Many of the clubs who stood high at the beginning, and showed considerable promise, fell down, while others raised their standings as the season progressed. Final results were: Lincolns, Franklins, Collectors, Science, Americans, Sequoia, Seneca.

Every spring our club golfers gather at one of the local golf courses to compete in an amateur tournament. This is a big event for the club mashie wielders who regard it as the beginning of the golfing season, because they have generally been prevented from much previous playing by bad weather.

All in fun

Coming as a sort of prelude to the Silver Streaks and their Northwest Conference battles, club basketball was hotly contested this year among all seven of the boys' clubs. Using cunning and artifice and other arts of the game, both known and unknown, all of the teams showed occasional flashes of brilliance but the general style of play seemed to be more or less haphazard, though none the less exciting.

As the tournament progressed, three teams appeared outstanding—those of the Franklins, Lincolns and the Senecans. Interest mounted as these clubs grappled for the championship, but apparently they were about equal in fighting strength for none could gain the advantage and the result was a three-way tie, each of the clubs winning five games and losing one.

Final standings were as follows: Lincolns, Franklins, Senecans, Americans, Sequoians, Collectors, Science.

Our fraternal denizens of the deep splashed midst the wavelets for the honor of their various organizations, competing in no less than eight different aquatic events including diving, a relay, and several free style and back stroke events. In club swimming, as in softball and basketball, the Lincolns and the Franklins again vied for first place, and as usual the results were close. The teams in order of results were as follows: Lincolns, Franklins, Boys' Science, Sequoia, Americans, Collectors, Seneca.

Because there was greater interest manifested this year than ever before, the competition was more potent and consequently the events were more thoroughly enjoyed.

Boon Companions

This year inaugurated the first season in which tennis has been a recognized sport in either Galesburg High School or the conference in which Galesburg has been a member. The year of 1935 will also go down in the annals of G. H. S. as the first year in which girls have been allowed to compete in any sport under the colors of high school. They, too, represented Galesburg in the tennis meet at Kewanee.

The teams were selected by an elimination tournament under the direction of Mr. Phillips and Miss Cypreansen, who are the coaches of the boys' and girls' teams respectively.

Due chiefly to the fact that Galesburg has been lacking in proper tennis equipment as far as courts go, the material on hand this past season was not too plentiful. None the less, the teams, who did represent the school, played well against high class competition and won fourth place at the N. W. C. Tournament. The team was composed of: John Woolsey and Frances Tracy, singles; Robert Mariner, Dean Lindstrom, Winifred Colton, Virginia Gunther, doubles.

Several new tennis courts have been opened and it is hoped that there will be even keener competition than there was this season.

Born into the realm of sport this past season along with tennis was the Scottish pastime of golf. Golf was equally as new in the N. W. C.

Under the able direction of Mr. Aldus, a tournament was conducted from which boys with the lowest medal scores were selected for the team of four. The victors were Don Searles, Robert Howe, William DeWitt and Richard Morrison.

The tournament was played at Aledo on a neutral course. Meeting the crack golfers from East Moline and Kewanee, Galesburg came through with fourth place.

Since the squad was composed mostly of juniors, it is forecast that Galesburg's golf team of '37 will carry off first honors.

With pep and zip the three pony yell leaders start the evening off with that "Smash 'em, Bust 'em" yell with all the G. H. S. students to back them up. This year has proved that the pony games were as close and exciting as the varsity games. The three cheer leaders, Jack Bell, Bob Hale and Forest Barton have helped to keep up the school spirit by leading the fans in their support of the team.

Never content to remain quiet when the slightest opportunity presented itself for encouraging the team or of arousing the enthusiasm of the spectators, these three shouted until they were hoarse. The sophomore team can certainly feel fortunate to have three yell leaders who can look ahead to a future of leading their school chums to help the team with their loyal support.

They can do it!

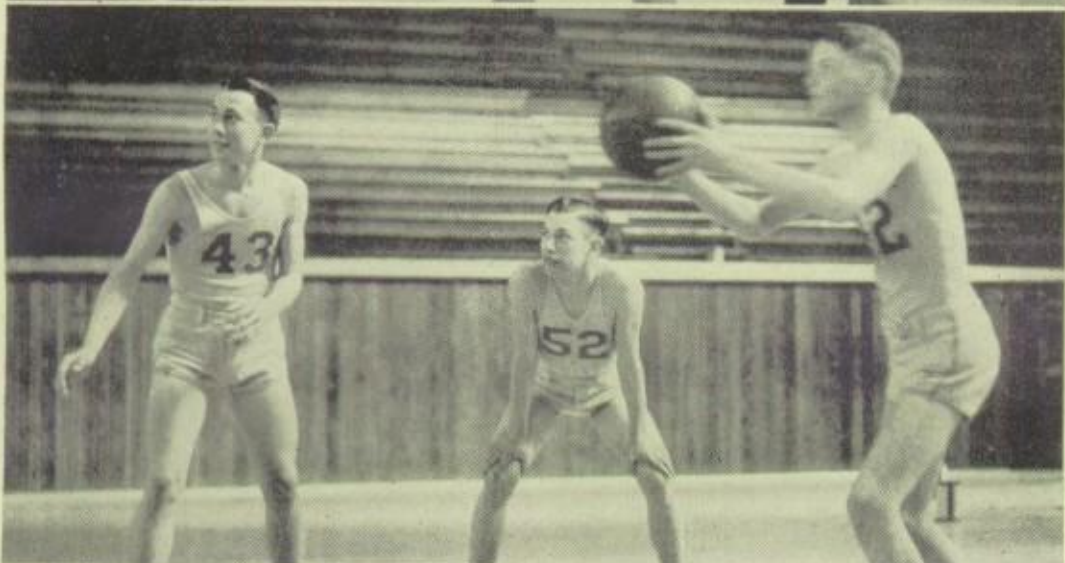

Hampered again this year as in the past by the fact that the schools which the Galesburg Pony football team must face did not employ all sophomores as did Galesburg, and by the additional coaching that these other teams received in junior high, which was not practiced in our school system, Coach Phillips developed an eleven capable of holding its own even against these odds.

Unfortunate, perhaps, in the circumstance that pitted them against the strongest two teams of the schedule in the initial two games, the Ponies lost to East Moline and Moline by narrow margins.

Then the Shetlands, as they were popularly referred to, showed the effect of the experience gained in the first two games. They trounced Rock Island 19-0, Kewanee 13-6 and Monmouth 7-0.

The manner in which the sophomores closed the season indicates that strong varsity material will be available next year.

If the sophomore basketball team of this past season is to be an indication of what is to come as far as the varsity squad is concerned, Galesburg may be assured of a strong cage team in subsequent years. Taking the small men that reported, Coach Bednar moulded them into a fast, hard driving team.

Opening the season with a rush, the Ponies defeated Burlington, Peoria Central, Monmouth and Rock Island before losing to Kewanee. They quickly regained their stride, however, and rolled over Moline and Canton.

At this point they struck a snag and lost their tilts with East Moline, Rock Island, Monmouth and Moline before recovering and winning from Canton, 25-11, in the final contest.

h, Hello!
Is this the editor of that
new book,
which at the present time is being looked forward to

with such eager anticipation?

"Yes, the Reflector. Well, I have some valuable information for that book. I hear you are having a large girls' sports section, and I have just the information you need to fill it.

"The basketball season opened by, first, electing a captain from each advisory. These teams played an elimination tournament. - - - - -

"The outcome? Why yes, I have that right here. Advisory 321 defeated 113 for sophomore laurels. Jean Scott acted as captain for the winners. Championship in the junior class went to Marion Thoureene's team. The final game of the tournament was played between the junior and senior champs, and was won by the latter. - - - - -

"No, I have a little bit about the results of club basketball. The strongest teams proved to be the Science and Annies. They were excelled only by the Lizzies.

"I understand the next section is to be devoted to the interclass swimming meet. There were several different events, the first being the sidestroke. This was won by Virginia Gunther. The backstroke was won by Winifred Colton, underwater swim by Jeanette Stoke, who swam one and three-fourths lengths of the pool, a novelty race by Barbara Oestreicher, towing Kathleen Owens, and free style race by Martha Nelson.

"Yes, diving was also included. The winners were as follows: plain front, Winifred Colton; back, Alice Kennedy and fancy, Alice Kennedy. - - -

"Before I forget it, I want to tell you about the P. T. A. program sponsored April 27. The senior high school under the direction of Miss Cypreansen presented 'A Dance Fantasy'.

"The numbers were as follows: Wynken, Blynken, and Nod; Gypsies; French dolls; Raggedy Ann and Ragged Andy; Mickey and Minnie Mouse with Miss Betty Miller as accompanist. The remainder of the program was given by other schools.

A Real Athletes

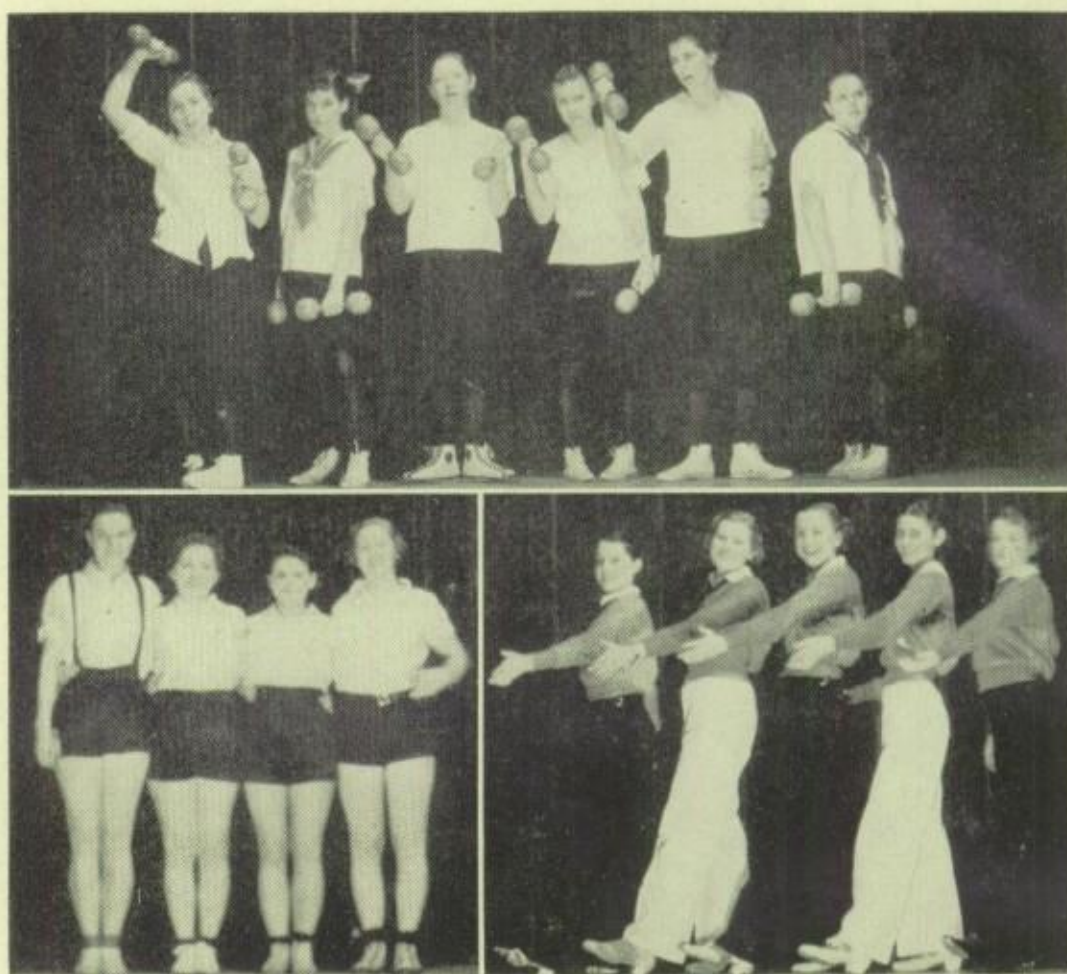

Ten girls' basketball teams remained in the tournament after the eliminations. With every one of the ten teams threatening to win the championship, a most exciting season was created. Each night brought the finals closer, and each night the cheering section increased.

Club basketball season brought even more evenly matched teams together to fight for the championship than ever before. The customary race between the Lizzies and the Annies in the finals, again added pep to the games. With each player breathless from the fast moving game, the last minutes saw two baskets made by the Lizzies, who thus garnered the club basketball championship.

Galesburg High School has many girls of aquatic ability. The result of the girls' swimming meet gave laurels to several girls who showed outstanding skill.

The girls who took gym of Miss Cypreansen showed ability in every field of physical education. Dancing in assemblies, the basketball and swimming tournaments were all participated in by these students.

The dances in the operetta were also directed by Miss Cypreansen, which gave an example of her ability in this work.

he Assembly? My yes, the gym classes put on a marvelous assembly, one of the best of the year. Mr. Moyer acted as chairman. The program consisted of speeches by Mr. Gillespie and Mr. Phillips, a sales talk by Mr. Brooking, and Harriett Ryan, LaVerne Stewart, Velma Mizner and Anita Sand sang songs. A novel idea was carried out in the dances. The first was old-fashioned. Then in contrast to the old, a very modern tap dance was given. - - - - -

"No, I know I haven't said anything about Miss Cypreansen. I always leave the best for the last. Would you like to know what the students really think of her? - - - - -

"You would? They think she is lovable, competent, sincere - - - -

"What? You're not going to have enough space? Well, we'll compromise and say she is what we would call, a perfect gym teacher.

"Oh, that's all right. Please let me know if I can be of further service to you. . . Goodbye."

Pals ~ ~ ~

The twilight is deepening, and through the gloom I can see the loved characters of the book world departing

Tom Sawyer and Huck Finn, bosom chums, bringing back memories of dead cats and white-washed fences

Gallant knights in armor jousting before their fair ladies

Swash-buckling pirates sailing the Spanish
Main

Don Quixote, with drawn lance, charging a windmill

Rip Van Winkle rubbing his eyes after his long sleep

Robinson Crusoe, dressed in goat-skins

Sydney Carton climbing serenely to the guillotine

Ali Baba and Aladdin; Alice peering into the looking-glass; Meg, Jo, Beth and Amy; D'Artagnan

—Robert Billings.

AUTUMN DAYS

The Autumn days are here again,
The season I like best;
The gentle winds—the shining sun—
All end a sense of rest.

As leaves stray down with willing ease,
They never make a sound.
Their colors gay are rare indeed—
Bright blotches on the ground.

A fairyland with leaves of gold;
The smell of bon-fires burning;
Mother Nature paints this scene
For which our hearts are yearning.
—Gladys Park.

The clouds

Clouds are the sky's soft powder puffs—
 Fantastic balls of feathery fluff.
 They float across the sapphire sky—
 Queer images of forms on high.

—Jean Rowe.

THE SEA

I look at the sea
 Its water stretches
 Endlessly.
 The waves come up
 To shore,
 Tossing, splashing, churning
 With a roar
 Then settle back to calm and more.

—Robert Thorne.

SUNSHINE FLOWER

The flower that blooms so sweetly
 In the sunny month of May,
 Grows sweeter and more lovely,
 As I trudge along the way.

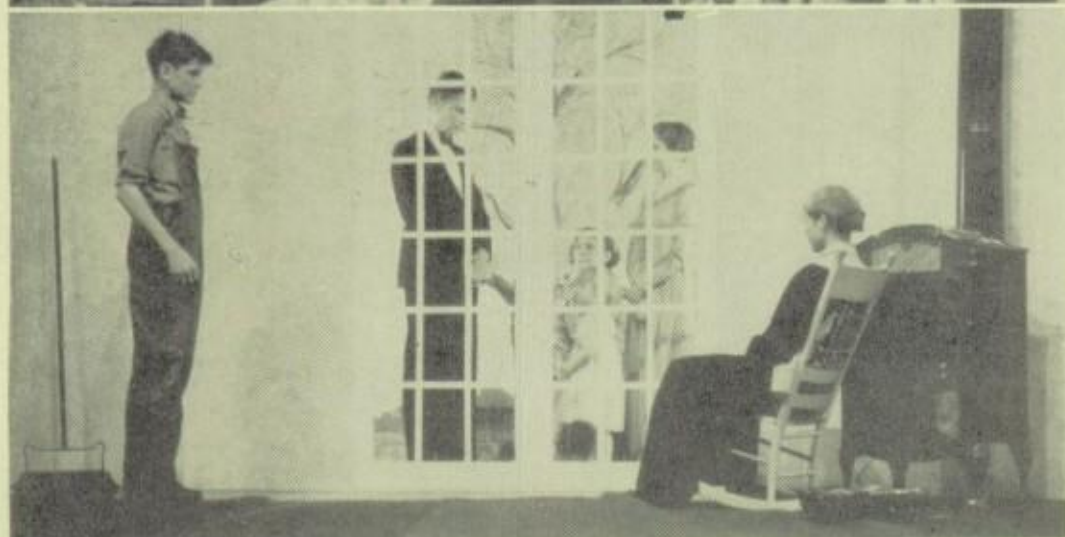

The petals of this hardy plant
 Surround a heart of gold,
 Expressing love and helpfulness
 That words have never told.

This precious flower, when I am sad
 Can cheer me all the while,
 For it's more lovely than the rose—

Just a hearty—sunny—smile.

—Robert Shaw.

A FALLING STAR
From an expanse of electric blue
A streak of gleaming white Shoots downward toward the earthly sphere—
One flash of fading light.

Like a silver pointed arrow,
Released from a bow supreme,
It pierces through the infinite dark
To light a passing dream.
—Blanch Cordell.

MUSIC
What is so restful
As a night in May,
As light breezes banish
The heat of the day,
With sweet fragrance of roses
Floating round in the air
And soft notes of music
Dissolving all care?
—Virginia Gunther.

DARKNESS
Oh innocent darkness,
What do you hold in store?

Oh innocent darkness,
Are you nothing more
Than the daylight dressed in black?
—Frances Emstrom.

DELIRIUM
The trees, in torturous fever
writhing,
Are wildly tossing off their
burdenous leaves.
These gone, they settle down
to convalesce.
—Betty Miller.

A Bit of Verse

Seventeen ~ ~ ~ ~ Milestones

At Booth Tarkington's immortal age of seventeen, I am a tall, gaunt, shaggy-headed person with prominent feet.

I am of good, sturdy, pioneer stock, my ancestors being among the first to settle in America, although I didn't get here until the fifth of January in 1919.

As I look back over these seventeen years, there comes over me a feeling of complete peacefulness, my explanation being that I have always been slow—so slow, in fact, that I've been called lazy by persons whom I deem not good judges.

Looking seventeen years into the future, I am moved to a feeling of discomfort, a sense of being engulfed in a sea of busy people, responsibility and worry.

My first conception of our educational system was glimpsed on the day I gallantly attacked the portals of learning in the wake of my mother, who saw that I was properly embarked upon a "brilliant" career. As soon as she left, difficulties besieged me that shattered much of my Caesar-like confidence. My teachers also shared my troubles as they vainly attempted to understand my dialect, a poor imitation of an English cockney.

The second year of my schooling was filled with sickness. Upon making up an absence of four months I won a prize given by the teacher for the best grades. This was a wonderful flare of genius for which I have been unable to account. I do not remember the presentation, but I distinctly recall my ears feeling as if they were on fire. The baseball I received as a prize was not an unusually good one. I suppose second grade teachers are not good baseball "pickers," but I was prouder of that ball than of the one I later received at a major league game.

My next clear conception was the riding of my bright, shiny, new bicycle to school for the first time. I parked it back of the building, well protected with the biggest lock I could buy for ten cents, and walked into the school with a feeling of great security. That night I walked out of school and home. When I reached there my mother confronted me as to the whereabouts of my bicycle. Then I remembered. Panic stricken, I pled with mother to take me back to get it in the car.

"No, you left it. You walk back and get it," she said. I ran those seven odd blocks in time that would have been a credit to Glenn Cunningham.

On entrance to the sixth grade, school life took on a new meaning. This teacher was a red-headed, good natured person, proving that there are always exceptions. It was during this time that we published the W. S. N., meaning the "World's Smallest Newspaper." That was by far the stellar year of my education.

The next year I reached junior high, a new system inaugurated in an effort to keep me out of high school as long as possible. Time cures all things, however, so at the present I am abiding in the high school, surrounded by test tubes and formulas.

Long shall I remember that first day at junior high. The morning it was to open I was up early. I ate a light breakfast, combed my hair down so slickly it almost shone, with the exception of a vertical cowlick on the back of my head. This minor defect was finally conquered by my father. I don't remember whether he cut it off or not, but it was fixed along with a lecture on the proper etiquette for the day, given by my mother. As I stood in the line with the other H's, I took personal inventory of myself. I was attired in knickers, half socks, a clean white shirt, and a necktie, the latter being the last one that has ever been seen on me. We mounted the stairs at the top of which stood a pleasant looking teacher with large glasses placed conspicuously low on her nose. She was giving each boy and girl suggestions on how to reach his respective advisory.

School soon became a "study" routine, broken only by vacation trips which constituted an important part of my education, taking me into thirty-six states, Canada and Mexico. I have seen that supposedly calm Pacific on a rampage that dealt death and destruction, and the turbulent Atlantic as quiet and smooth as a pane of glass.

From the highest towers of Manhattan I have been awed by the audacity of man's tall buildings competing with God's own peaks and canyons of the Rockies.

I have picked cotton in Texas, horses in Agua Caliente, and oranges in California, but never have I picked an ear of corn. Likewise I have seen bears, moose, elk, and buffalo in their native haunts. I have fed chip-munks in Estes and watched alligators in Florida, but greater was the thrill of my first ride behind a horse last summer in Ford's Greenfield Village.

During all this time I have been conscious of growing up. Suits must now replace sweaters. Childish things are ridiculed with, "You're too old for that, now." So with a lump in my throat, one by one I have either doled out my toys to my three destructive cousins, or packed away the more precious ones so posterity can view the playthings of the genius of this generation.

As these seventeen years close, I try to look forward rather than backward. My ambitions fill me with zest and determinations to accomplish something really worthwhile in life; if for no other reason than to disprove the feeling that my teachers hold toward me—that I am lazy.

y Bob Howe ~

Wind

Wind somehow always fascinates me,
As it carries ships far out to sea,
Or tosses the kites away up
high,
Until they're lost in the boundless sky.

In summer it's merely a gentle breeze
That rustles and sighs among the trees.
In winter it tosses the soft
snow flakes,
And whistles and screams
across frozen lakes.

—Harriott Felt.

THE ELEMENTS

Evacuate your houses built of glass and steel;
Behold the battle waged apace
on high!
The clouds move slowly as a fleet of war,
And grind each other in an avalanche's roar.

A blade of lightning cleaves
the bulgin^g vault,
And torrents gush from heavy
laden skies.
The moon deplores the scene
and hides her rain-washed face
While shimmering levin trims
the clouds with golden lace.
—John Woolsey.

THE WEATHER VANE
Twirling in the sunlight,
Veering with the wind,
Stands erect in the heights
A bird of brass and tin.

Head held high—tail an arch
Immobile—like a statue;
Changing with the winds of March,
This bird stands alone in the blue.

—Billy Haight.

A SQUIRREL
What looks so happy as a squirrel?
Graceful, nimble, and light
little sprite—Jumping and hopping from limb to limb
Of trees that furnish a home
for him.
He works when he has to,
And plays when he can—
Little, light-hearted, bushytailed squirrel!

—Wanda Mace.

GRASS
Most anyone
Would like to see the wind
Swishing in the grass on a sultry summer's day,
I guess.

—Charles Goldstone.

THE STORM
The night is blackening slowly
The wind is blowing in gales;
The roar of the thunder and lightening
Is drowned by the mad night's wails.

—Patsy Peak.

Oh! Nature

Duppy Thoughts

Legs, long legs, trouser legs, feet, fuzzy slippers, heavy shoes all around me, and they wonder why I stay under the stove. People picking me up, pulling my ears, holding me in uncomfortable positions, making silly noises, and they wonder why I don't like to be held. People telling me to come here, not to go in there, to sit down, not to touch this, not to touch that, and what puppy wouldn't get all bemuddled now and then?

They dress me up in silly clothes and parade me up and down the street while people point at me, poke me, and pet me. If I weren't the good puppy I am—well, it's a good thing I was brought up right!

Yesterday I captured a bone from that big dog next door and carried it up a couple of steps onto the front porch. It wasn't there this morning. Maybe he got it—oh well!

There's another thing that puzzles me. The first few nights I was away from my mother, my new master, when I cried, would pick me up and cuddle me, but now he just spanks me!

I hope some day I'll be as big as the dog next door who chases cats, and then I may be able to see something besides legs.

—Rosemary Creighton.

SPRINGTIME

Yestereven I saw trees,
Silhouetted against the blue sky of a new spring night.

I drank in the cold, fresh air with a feeling
Of exhilaration in life.

Yes, I sing, yes, surely—
This, at last, is surely spring.

—Charles Goldstone.

An Old House

There are mysteries that an old house knows
Of secret rooms where no one goes.
Some think it a friend, others
feel it a foe
With its essence of the past,
the long ago,
That hovers in the old fashioned rooms,
With spinning wheels and queer old looms.

In this old house where spirits
dwell,
Are cobwebs gray and musty
smells.
To second floor a creekly stair
winds.
Its secrets rare are guarded by blinds,
Secrets the world so prying
and bold
Would not believe if it were told.

—Portia Tingley.

STORM

A streak of light, a mighty blast
Of wind, and rain, and muffled roar.
The storm had reached its highest peak,
And giant limbs from trees, it tore.

But all must end, and so it was—
The storm, its furore soon did cease
And sleep stole by on silent feet
To take our minds o'er misty seas.

—Robert Weaver.
